1	Antique tool chest	Antique tool chest (34.5" wide, 18" deep, 17" tall) Features handcut dovetails, very cool recessed handles, 3 tills (narrow saw till in back, 2 shallow tills). Screws attaching lid to hinge on back left side have waggled out. I have 3 of the 4 screws. (I had planned to replace both with a some kind of strap hinge, but never got around to it.)	$ 100.00	OBO	handtools
2	Mortising attachment for drill press	Delta mortising attachment for drill press that I had mounted on a Delta 16" drill press. Not sure if it fits all makes of drill presses, but there are some different sized collars in the box. The bits are protected in small PVC pipes. The original plastic case distentegrated on me and there is no manual, but I'm pretty sure all of the parts are there.	$ 25.00	OBO	misc
3	Fence clamp	Fence clamp for clamping a sacraficial fence to your table saw fence. Never used.	$ -	FREE	tablesaw
4	Grr-Ripper	Grr-Ripper system with several extras, most of which were never used and packages remain unopened.	$ 10.00	OBO	tablesaw
5	Forrest 10" table saw blades	Forrest 10" tablesaw blades: Woodworker II (currently $234 new), Duraline Hi-A/T (currently $327 new), Dado King (currently $534 new) with Magnetic Dado Shims, and Blade Stiffener. At one time these were the best you could buy. All I know is that they were frightfully expensive (and still are). I'm pretty sure I bought the blade stiffener for my radial arm saw, but apparently I never used it. $250 takes all three.	$ 150.00	OBO	tablesaw
5.1	Forrest Woodworker II	Professionally sharpened at least once.	$ 50.00	OBO	tablesaw
5.2	Forrest Duraline Hi-A/T		$ 50.00	OBO	tablesaw
5.3	Forrest Dado King	Note: The magnetic shims for the Dado King stuck the sides of a few of the cutters and gunked them up. It's a cosmetic issue. No effect on their use or accuracy.	$ 75.00	OBO	tablesaw
6	Violin case	Yes, it's a violin case. It was given to me by the leader of a band I was playing in pre-pandemic. I don't remember why he gave it to me, but he said he originally got it for a Halloween Costume where he was dressed as a gangster.	$ -	FREE	oddball
9	Scraper	Scraper with wooden handle dated 1909	$ -	FREE	handtools
15	E.C. Stearns saw vise	Patent date 8/22/1899. I'm not sure how this one works. There may some parts missing.	$ -	FREE	handtools
17	Assorted edge clamps	Not sure who they're made by, but I'm pretty sure I picked these up at the woodworking show that used to pass through town every year. They work fine, but I'm not making anything that I would use them on anymore.	$ 10.00	OBO	misc
20	Lathe tools	An assortment of lathe tools that is not much to speak of, but might be good for a beginner.	$ -	FREE	misc
22	A pile of files	Assorted files I picked up over the years.	$ -	FREE	misc
23	Assorted grinding stones	Assorted grinding stones I picked up over the years and a drill bit grinding attachment. I'm not sure why anyone would ever attempt to sharpen a drill bit, so I'm not sure where this came from.	$ -	FREE	misc
24	Brad nailer	A couple of parts (including the trigger) have rattled off of this brad nailer, but I think it still works. It can be used for parts if not.	$ -	FREE	misc
25	Bottle cutter	Bindu Studio bottle cutter. Used it to cut a bunch of wine bottles into glasses, but my wife wasn't particularly impressed with my handiwork. I ended up chunking the glasses and shelving the bottle cutter. Please take it away.	$ -	FREE	oddball

27	Grip-Tite	Grip-Tite magnetic featherboard. Those old-timers that used to attend the woodworking shows that used to pass through town in the 00s will well remember the guy demoing this nifty little tablesaw add-on. He would rip an 8' 2x4 about half way, then rock the board side to side against the blade. Those of us watching the demo who knew exactly how crazy it was didn't know whether to run away or stick around for the inevitable and eminent disaster. That the little Sears table saw didn't throw that 2x4 back at him is a testament to how cool (and revolutionary for the time) this little featherboard was. I don't think they sell these anymore, but they are still pretty darn cool.	$ 10.00	OBO	tablesaw
28	A-Line It	In-Line Industries Basic A-Line It for adjusting the run-out on tablesaws. This is a VERY useful tool for aligning the tablesaw blad parallel to the miter gauge slots. Sells for $80 new. I think this was created and sold by the brother of the lunatic that sold the Grip-Tites. This guy also sold the Dubby Cut-off sled, which was fantastic if you ever run across one.	$ 25.00	OBO	tablesaw
29	Push sticks		$ -	FREE	tablesaw
30	Magswitch	Magswitch magenetic featherboard. Sells for $50 new on Amazon, and this one is essentially new. I'm not sure where the red featherboard came from. I think it was part of a jig I made for something. I don't remember.	$ 10.00	OBO	tablesaw
31	Resawing guide?	I think this is a resawing guide for a bandsaw. It came off the old 14" Powermatic I gave to DMS in 2016 (long since gone).	$ -	FREE	misc
32	Wixey (Original)	When the Wixey was introduced, I think pretty much anyone that had ever used a tablesaw recognized how incredibly genius in this handy little tool was.	$ 10.00	OBO	tablesaw
34	Corner Clamp set	Never used. Not sure how they work, or why I even have them.	$ -	FREE	misc
